Grain Crops In 1928

The prediction has been made from many sources, and with but few exceptions, to say that the year 1928 gives promise of being one of the greatest years of development in Canadian history, marked by increased activity in mining, manufacturing, building, water-power development, transportation, and a rising tide of immigration. Agriculture by word and promise are a star in declaring that Canada is now in a position to take a giant step forward, and that apart from the financial stability and resources of Canada, food, fuel, British and United States money will be available for most development enterprise.

Want of agriculture, the basic source of Western Canada, and upon the prosperity of which much of the growth and prosperity of all Canadian industry depends?

It is generally recognized that agriculture occupies a strategic position higher than it did a few years ago, and that conditions have been steadily improving year by year. There is a feeling of hopefulness abroad that this feeling will continue. But if 1928 is to prove a successful year for Western farmers they must themselves take by the forelock and lay the foundation of that success. It is now when the snow is on the ground and the temperature hovering about the zero point that the farmer must be making good his plans for the year to come. It is now when the farmer must be making good his plans for the year to come. It is now when the farmer must be making good his plans for the year to come.

Later in the year, however, and especially when the farmer is making good his plans for the year to come, it is now when the farmer must be making good his plans for the year to come. It is now when the farmer must be making good his plans for the year to come. It is now when the farmer must be making good his plans for the year to come.

Unless the best of clean seed is sown, the best and cleanest crops cannot be obtained. If seed sown is poor, weeds and not wheat, oats, or other valuable crops will result. This is so obvious that it would seem unnecessary to say any more upon it. But what is the solution?

Western farmers can profit from the lesson learned from a seed drill survey conducted by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture last year. In 20 thousand acres of grain were taken from the seed drills of the farmers in the province. Out of each lot, ten samples were taken, which were graded No. 1 or No. 2, three graded No. 3, and three graded No. 4.

The oats being used, the seed rejected was caused chiefly by the presence of weeds. In other words, only three out of every ten farmers were sowing good, clean seed. The results of the survey show that the sowing good, clean seed oats. Under such conditions, how can Western farmers expect to obtain large yields and a highly profitable return from their crops?

Thirty-seven per cent of the farmers in these townships were using clean seed, thirty per cent of the farmers in these townships were using clean seed, thirty per cent of the farmers in these townships were using clean seed.

There is a lot of truth in the claim of the Canadian Seed Trade Association that an investment in clean seed returns in three days of the investment, and that with right conditions and care it may return as high as ten or fifteen dollars.

Clean seed will not sit itself down a heavy and profitable crop. It will not sit itself down a heavy and profitable crop. It will not sit itself down a heavy and profitable crop.
